FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

DOUBLE CELEBRATION FOR WINDSOR TELECOM

Windsor Telecom is marking its 10th anniversary with an Investors in People Award.

The telecommunications firm, which has offices in Dorset and Surrey, has been given the accolade on its very first attempt to achieve the national accreditation and celebrated recently at Farnham Castle.

Anne Dolan, people developer at Windsor Telecom, said: "We are absolutely delighted with this result and it's a timely celebration of our 10th birthday. We are constantly striving to create an environment for success by improving what we do and how we do it. This award shows how well we invest in our people and whilst this benefits them and our business - it is our customers who reap the ultimate benefits."

Chief executive, Neil Sherring, added: "I am extremely proud that our talented team has been acknowledged in this way. Our people are our strongest asset and it's very important to us that everybody achieves their full potential."

Investors in People recognises UK companies that strive to improve business performance through good management and development of staff. Windsor put itself forward for the extended version of the standard which meant the company received detailed feedback on the higher levels of the assessment.

Investors in People assessor, Joanne Brady commented: "I am delighted that Windsor Telecom has achieved Investors in People. The involvement of people in business planning, people's commitment to the success of the company and their confidence in the directors and the direction of the company as well as the positive, supportive induction for recent recruits, are just some of the strengths identified during the assessment".

Windsor Telecom was established in 1999 and has over 8500 business customers both large and small. The company is officially recognised by Ofcom as the 2nd largest provider of 0845 numbers in the UK and is fast becoming the leading authority on the new 03 phone numbers. The firm also specialises in providing online call management solutions to give organisations complete control and flexibility over their inbound calls.
